Von Gregory Daly : Cannae: The Experience of Battle in the Second Punic War: The Experience of Battle in the Second Punic War before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Cannae: The Experience of Battle in the Second Punic War: The Experience of Battle in the Second Punic War:

Kurzbeschreibung On a hot and dusty summer's day in 216 BC, the forces of the Carthaginian general Hannibal faced the Roman army in a dramatic encounter at Cannae. Massively outnumbered, the Carthaginians nevertheless won an astonishing victory - one that left more than 50,000 men dead. Gregory Daly's enthralling study considers the reasons that led the two armies to the field of battle, and why each followed the course that they did when they got there. It explores in detail the composition of the armies, and the tactics and leadership methods of the opposing generals. Finally, by focusing on the experiences of those who fought, Daly gives an unparalleled portrait of the true horror and chaos of ancient warfare. This striking and vivid account is the fullest yet of the bloodiest battle in ancient history.

Pressestimmen "With "Cannae: The Experience of Battle in the Second Punic War, Gregory Daly forges one of the most comprehensive analytical studies of the battle ever attempted. Drawing on ancient and modern source material, Daly crafts an account of the battle that explores in detail the field armies arrayed against one another at Cannae....Daly presents a refreshingly comprehensive analysis and brings facts and references into a single volume worthy of any bookshelf dedicated to warfare in the classical world." -"Military "Cannae, the most detailed analysis of the battle that this writer has seen, will be of immense interest to any student of warfare in Classical Antiquity."
